Chapter Five: Darth Vader's Arrival

The group had barely a moment to catch their breath before they were suddenly jolted by a deafening noise. It sounded like a ship, and it was growing louder by the second. The group looked up to see a massive black ship descending from the sky, its wingspan blocking out the sun.

As the ship landed, the ground shook, and the group braced themselves against the impact. The ship's ramp lowered, and a figure stepped out, his black cloak billowing in the wind.

It was Darth Vader, the infamous Sith Lord from a galaxy far, far away. The group couldn't believe their eyes, but there was no mistaking the imposing figure of Vader.

"What brings you here, Vader?" Jesus asked, stepping forward to confront the dark lord.

"I have come to destroy the gang and anyone who opposes me," Vader replied, his voice deep and menacing.

"We will not let you harm us or anyone else," Abraham Lincoln declared, stepping forward to stand beside Jesus.

Vader ignited his lightsaber, the red blade humming to life. The group prepared for battle, each member ready to fight for their lives.

The battle was fierce and intense, with lightsabers clashing and spells flying through the air. The group fought bravely, but they were no match for Vader's power.

One by one, the members of the group fell to Vader's might, until only Jesus and Abraham Lincoln remained.

Vader advanced on them, his lightsaber poised to strike. But just as he was about to deliver the final blow, a bright light enveloped the group.

When the light dissipated, the group found themselves back on the platform where they had started their journey. They were battered and bruised, but alive.

"We have failed," Jesus said, hanging his head in defeat.

"No," Abraham Lincoln said, looking around at his fellow warriors. "We have learned something valuable today. We cannot face Vader or Kirby alone. We must work together, use our strengths, and support each other if we are to have any chance of defeating them."

The group nodded in agreement, their determination renewed. They knew that the fate of the universe rested on their shoulders, and they were ready to face whatever challenges lay ahead.

Chapter Six: The Betrayal of Darth Vader

The group of legendary figures huddled together in a dark corner of the ancient Greek city, deep in discussion about their next move. They had managed to stop Kirby from causing any more damage in Greece, but they knew they needed to keep moving and stay one step ahead of him.

Suddenly, a bright light shone down upon them, and a figure emerged from within. It was Darth Vader, the infamous villain from the Star Wars franchise. The group was shocked to see him standing before them.

"What are you doing here?" Albert Einstein asked, his voice laced with suspicion.

"I have come to join you in your quest to stop Kirby," Darth Vader replied, his breathing heavy and ominous.

The group looked at each other, unsure of whether to trust Vader or not. They knew he had a dark past and had done many terrible things, but they also knew that they needed all the help they could get.

"Very well," Buddha said, breaking the silence. "We accept your help, but you must prove yourself worthy of our trust."

Darth Vader nodded, and the group set off on their journey once again, with Vader now in tow. They traveled through time, stopping at various points in history to prevent Kirby from causing any more destruction.

At each stop, Vader proved himself to be a valuable member of the team, using his skills and knowledge to help them overcome various obstacles. The group began to trust him more and more, and they even started to see a softer side to him.

But as they neared their final destination, a strange energy began to emanate from Vader. He started to act erratically and began to make decisions that went against the group's plans.

"Something is not right with him," Mr. Beast whispered to Abraham Lincoln as they watched Vader's actions.

"I think he's planning something," Abraham Lincoln replied, his eyes narrowed in suspicion.

Their suspicions were confirmed when, in the heat of battle, Vader suddenly turned on the group. He revealed that he had been working with Kirby all along, and that he had only been helping them to gain their trust.

The group was shocked and saddened by Vader's betrayal, but they knew they had to stop him before he could cause any more damage. The battle was fierce, with each member of the group using their unique abilities to take down Vader and Kirby.

In the end, they emerged victorious, but the group was forever changed by the events that had transpired. They realized that even those with the darkest of pasts could sometimes surprise them with their actions, for better or for worse.

As they traveled back to their own time periods, the group reflected on their journey and what they had learned. They knew that the universe would always be in peril, but they also knew that they had each other and their unique skills to rely on when the time came to save it once again.

Chapter Seven: Betrayal in time

The group arrived back at their own time periods feeling somber and reflective. They couldn't believe that Darth Vader had betrayed them and had been working with Kirby all along. They had thought they had gained a valuable member of their team, but instead, they had been duped.

As they parted ways, each member of the group couldn't shake the feeling of unease that lingered within them. They knew that they needed to stay vigilant and watch out for any signs of betrayal in the future.

Days turned into weeks, and the group had gone their separate ways, trying to pick up the pieces of their shattered trust. But then, strange things began to happen.

First, it was Nikola Tesla's lab that was destroyed in a suspicious fire, destroying years of valuable research. Then, Amelia Earhart's plane disappeared without a trace, leaving her family and friends devastated. Finally, Albert Einstein's groundbreaking theory was stolen from his office, leaving him feeling violated and helpless.

The group was on high alert, and they knew that something was amiss. They couldn't help but wonder if these events were connected to their battle with Kirby and Vader.

They quickly regrouped and started to investigate. They discovered that someone had been communicating with Kirby and Vader, providing them with crucial information about the group's plans and movements.

The group was stunned when they found out who the traitor was. It was one of their own, someone they had trusted and worked with for years.

The traitor had been working with Kirby and Vader, providing them with valuable intel in exchange for power and wealth. They had betrayed their friends and colleagues, and now they would have to face the consequences.

The group brought the traitor to justice, but the damage had already been done. Their trust in each other had been shattered, and they knew that they could never be sure who to trust again.

As they went their separate ways once again, the group couldn't help but wonder if they could ever truly trust anyone again. They had faced down some of the most notorious villains in history, but it was the betrayal of one of their own that had hurt the most.

They knew that they would continue to fight for what was right, but they also knew that they would always be wary of who they let into their inner circle. The world was a dangerous place, and they had to be ready for anything.
